

Stanton Community Primary School and Nursery

We have been using KAZ for three years at Stanton Community Primary School, and in this time we have seen how transformative the use of this dyslexia friendly touch typing system has been for our dyslexic pupils. Where most of our dyslexic pupils had been handwriting at 8-12 words a minute, being able to touch type at 35 wpm + has been a huge advantage and has helped our children to overcome the barriers to writing at length, with accuracy and fluency. I have no hesitation in recommending the system to any school.

All of our children have enjoyed the process of learning to type very much indeed. It is also recognised by the school as a very valuable life skill and being able to attain a national Ofqual regulated certified qualification would be wonderful, as it would benefit the children in their future schools and careers.
